

Serone Capital Management strengthens structured credit team with senior hire from Morgan Stanley

London, 22 January 2026 – Serone Capital Management (“Serone”), a leading London-based investment manager specialising in alternative credit, today announced the appointment of Patrick Wills as a Portfolio Manager within its global structured credit team.

Patrick joins Serone’s London office with over 14 years of expertise in structured credit. He was most recently a Managing Director at Morgan Stanley, where he served as Global Head of Structured Products Group Repo Trading (SPG), and prior to that, he was a dedicated trader of RMBS, CMBS, and ABS. In this role, Patrick was instrumental in building the firm’s SPG repo business, establishing Morgan Stanley as a market leader in the financing of SRTs and NPLs in Europe.

In his new role at Serone, Patrick will be responsible for managing and growing a portfolio of structured credit assets, with a focus on public and private ABS, SRTs, and NPLs. His deep market expertise and strong track record will further strengthen Serone’s structured credit business.

Serj Walia, Chief Investment Officer at Serone Capital Management LLP, said: “We are delighted to welcome Patrick to our investment team. At a time of continued growth and investor demand across structured credit markets, his experience will be highly valuable as we deepen our capabilities and further support our clients.”

Patrick Wills, Portfolio Manager – Structured Credit at Serone Capital Management LLP, commented: “There continues to be a wide range of compelling opportunities for investors across global structured credit markets, and I am looking forward to working with the team at Serone to help identify and capture these opportunities.”
